Stimulating investment in the Eastern Cape

To stimulate economic growth in the Eastern Cape, the Department of Public Works will be making government land available to municipalities once projects have been identified.

This was announced at the recent Eastern Cape Property Marketing and Investment Conference organised by the Department of Public Works (PWD) in East London.

Kouga's Mayor, Horatio Hendricks said Kouga has about 80 kilometres of coastline, 50 kilometres of which is beach property and only 9% of this is developed. This provides investors with an opportunity to tap into this missed valuable space.

Local St Francis Bay businessman, Greg Miller, presented the technical aspects of future developments in the Kouga, including development of small harbours and beach precincts, the upgrade of tourism infrastructure, internet infrastructure and the upgrade of coastal town infrastructure to enable further developments and to stimulate investment.

The conference was attended by Public Works Minister, Thulas Nxesi, and members of the provincial cabinet. Representatives of all coastal municipalities in the Eastern Cape were in attendance and relevant government departments' officials, plus invited guests from the business and investment fields.

The municipalities presented their economic models and the investment opportunities that exist for the state and the private sector.

Hankey Matrics celebrate in style

This lovely bevy of beauties were in great spirits at the Hankey Matric Farewell event at St Francis Links late July. The girls wore the most elaborately designed outfits and looked sensational while the guys looked hip and trendy.
